Heartland Mensa Region 7

The leaves are falling. The air is brisk. The sun is setting a little earlier, especially once daylight savings time ends this month. I'll be keeping an eye out for the full beaver moon on November 15. We're approaching the end of the season. Another hottest summer on record is behind us as we look towards the cool relief ahead.

November is the time to harvest the last crops of the year before freeze sets in. It's an opportunity to look back on all the great things we accomplished this year as we clean up the yard, light up the fire pit, and wrap up under the blankets with a warm hot chocolate. Or a hot toddy. Many of us met up in Kansas City at the AG this year. For those who may have missed it, Chicago won't be far next year. There have been some great online events and lectures over Zoom that have helped close the geographic gap for some as well as great in-person games nights or lunches for those with fellow Mensans close by.

Let's hold on to those best memories of the year this fall while we let the unpleasant drift away with the smoke from the fire. While we're at it, let's find ways to help those around us join us and find their tribe. If you know a member who might not want to go to the same events as you, encourage them to start a new SIG with their interests. For those who haven't joined, let them know what Mensa means to you and let's get them tested. For a lot of people, sending prior test results can be even easier than showing up for a test.
